

Prioritisation list for a FIRI 2019 application: for a research organisation that is for its part host to a university or another research infrastructure

Instructions

General principles

- Host organisation refers to a university or another research organisation that is responsible for the infrastructure or a part of it.
- All host organisations that are a part of the FIRI 2019 call must draft their own prioritisation list.
- The prioritisation lists are appended to the application.
- If some of the host organisations in the application have not listed the application in the prioritisation list, it will not meet the call criteria.

Implementation

- Each host organisation can draft two lists including the applications it wishes to commit to
 - H-list: The responsible applicant's list includes the applications which have the host organisation as the responsible applicant
 - O-list: The consortium party applicant's list includes the applications which have the host organisation as a consortium party, but not as the responsible applicant
 - There is no need to justify the prioritisation order of the infrastructures. If necessary, the Finnish Research Infrastructure Committee requests for the justifications afterwards.
- Both lists (O and H) the host organisation prioritises its applications by placing them into groups A, B and C
 - o Group A includes the applications the host organisation prioritises the most in the FIRI 2019 call. Group A can include no more than 30% of the applications on the list. If there are only a few applications, you may place at least one application in group A.
 - o Group B includes the applications the host organisation prioritises the second most in the FIRI 2019 call. Group B can include no more than 40% of the applications on the list. If there are only a few applications, you may place at least one application in group B.
 - o Group C includes the applications the host organisation prioritises the third most in the FIRI 2019 call.
- All the FIRI 2019 applications must be placed either on the responsible applicant's list or the consortium party applicant's list.
